

Building tomorrow's minds :

On the shoulders of teaching giants in the bush capital

Pete is an extraordinary Arts educator and school leader. He is an expert teacher at Senior Secondary level, who has led teaching and learning in Media for many years. He regularly teaches at Canberra University, developing the educational skills of aspiring undergraduate Media artists through his work in this space.

He runs the Live Production Services course at Gungahlin College where he teaches industry standard technical theatre skills (including stage management, set construction, lighting and sound design and operation, publicity and front of house) to students who aspire to work in the creative industries, through a project learning based model where college students run all off-stage aspects of the annual college production. Our 2024 show, All Shook Up, is currently performing on the Gungahlin Theatre stage to great community acclaim.

Pete's skills as an educational leader are excellent, he is a supportive and knowledgeable mentor who takes a keen interest in developing staff capacity, whilst keeping students at the centre of all he does. His ability to create tools that collate and manipulate educational data is outstanding, supporting staff at all levels, to evidence their progress towards school improvement goals. He is also in charge of PR and Comms at Gungahlin College where his remarkable design and IT skills are leveraged to promote our school in the community.

Pete's students admire and respect him, and his peers are grateful they work with him. Every teaching moment Pete is involved in is memorable - 250 words does not do him, or his ongoing contribution to ACT education, justice.
